

Your support has allowed us, year after year, for 15 years to build a track record of delegation-based movement building.

Although four people of color were denied this year, 36 others entered successfully. Each was subsidized by IFPB supporters.

We pledge to maintain our commitment to organize diverse delegations with careful planning and training. What's more, IFPB's Scott Kennedy Memorial Scholarship Fund will ensure that more people of color and young activists can join IFPB delegations.

You make all of this - the connections, the transformations, and the ongoing engagement - possible. Thank you for your commitment to building a movement for justice.

"It's impossible to come away from the trip feeling neutral and apathetic. It will make an activist out of even the most reluctant participants."

– Alice Su, 2013 delegate currently working as journalist in the Middle East
